

Stay-The-Course

30-Night Consistency Tracker

*"Every hard night is a deposit.
This is your bank statement."*

Built around Chapter 10 — staying consistent when you're running on empty.
A 30-night nightly commitment checkbox, your WHY anchor, streak bank, weekly reviews, an SOS toolkit for bad nights, and a visual proof-of-progress wall.

"Consistency on hard nights is where progress lives." — Chapter 10

How to Use This Planner

Five minutes before night falls. That's all it takes.

01

Set Your WHY Anchor

Before Night 1, go to the WHY Anchor page. Choose or write your reason. Read it before every hard night. It is your only job when 2 a.m. lies to you.

02

Do the Nightly Page — Every Night

Each night gets its own log: commitment checkbox, sleep notes, reflection prompt, and an affirmation. Takes 3 minutes max. Do it before you collapse.

03

Mark Your Streak Dot

After each night, go to the 30-Night Streak Wall. Fill your dot:
● Green = done ● Red = hard but done ● Orange = missed.
Watch the wall grow. It's evidence. It's real.

04

Weekly Review — Every 7 Nights

After Night 7, 14, 21, and 30: complete the weekly review. It takes 10 minutes and is the single most important thing you can do for momentum.

05

Use the SOS Toolkit When It Gets Bad

It will get bad. Night 4 especially. Go straight to the SOS Toolkit page. Follow the steps. Do not make a decision without reading your WHY first.

06

Complete the 30-Night Debrief

Night 30 is a celebration. The debrief is your proof of change. Read it when you forget how hard this was and how far you've come.

"Any method works if applied consistently. Inconsistency is what fails." — Chapter 9

My WHY Anchor

Read this before every hard night. This is the only thing that matters at 2 a.m.

*"Hard nights are not failed nights.
They are deposits into an account you can't see yet."*

— Chapter 10, Sleep, Baby, Please.

STEP 1 — CHOOSE YOUR REASON (tick one or write your own):

- ☐ So my baby sleeps safely and soundly every night.
- ☐ So I can be fully present — not just surviving — every day.
- ☐ So our whole family gets the rest we need to thrive.
- ☐ So I stop dreading bedtime and start trusting the routine.
- ☐ So I can prove to myself I can stay consistent even when it's hard.
- ☐ So my baby learns a skill they'll carry for the rest of their life.
- ☐ So I feel like myself again — not just a walking zombie.
- ☐ Write your own →

STEP 2 — WRITE IT IN YOUR OWN WORDS:

STEP 3 — SAY THIS OUT LOUD BEFORE EVERY HARD NIGHT:

*"Tonight will be hard. I will stay the course anyway.
My baby is learning. I am building something real."*

PARTNER'S ACKNOWLEDGMENT:

30-Night Streak Bank

Mark each night. Watch your deposits build. This is your proof of work.

● Complete ● Hard but do ● Missed ● Not yet

Phase 1 · The Gauntlet

Night 4 is the hardest. Most parents quit here.
You are not most parents.

Phase 2 · The Dip

The dip feels like failure. It is the last test before the shift arrives.

Phase 3 · The Groove Begins

10+ deposits in the bank. You can feel something shifting. Trust it.

Phase 4 · Identity

Consistency is becoming who you are.
Not just what you do some nights.

Phase 5 · Habit Lock

Most habits solidify here. You're not fighting yourself anymore.

Phase 6 · Bank Statement

Count your deposits. This is evidence.
You built something real.

SOS Toolkit · Bad Night Protocol

You're here because it's hard. Good. That means you're still in it. Follow these steps — in order.

■ DO NOT CHANGE THE PLAN BEFORE COMPLETING STEP 1 ■

1 — Breathe First

Before you do anything — inhale 4 counts, hold 4, exhale 4.
Then decide. Not before.

done ☐

2 — Read the Plan

Open this planner. Read your WHY anchor.
Your 2 p.m. self already answered this.

done ☐

3 — The 5-Min Rule

Set a 5-minute timer before changing anything.
Most crises resolve in 4 minutes 30 seconds.

done ☐

4 — Call the Partner

You wrote the plan together. Wake them.
This is not a solo mission.

done ☐

5 — One Night ≠ Pattern

A hard night is data, not defeat.
Log it here and come back tomorrow.

☐

6 — Safe Sleep First

If in genuine doubt about safety — always check first, method second.

Before you do anything that deviates from the plan — go to your WHY Anchor page and read it out loud.

LOG TONIGHT (so you can see the pattern):

CHAPTER 10 REMINDER:

"One bad night does not undo five good ones. Log it. Sleep. Try again tomorrow."

If in any doubt about your baby's physical safety — always check first, method second. Contact your paediatrician.

30-Night Debrief • Your Bank Statement

You did it. Read this slowly. This is what consistency looks like.

Every hard night was a deposit.

This is your bank statement.

COUNT YOUR DEPOSITS

FINAL REFLECTION

What changed most in 30 nights?

What surprised you?

What would you tell Night-1 you?

What does your baby know now that they didn't?

Chapter 10 • Consistency Principles

The truths that carry you through the hard nights. Read on repeat.

1 — Hard nights are not failed nights — they are deposits.

2 — Your 2 p.m. plan is smarter than your 2 a.m. impulse.

3 — Sleep deprivation distorts judgment. Trust the rested plan.

4 — One bad night does not undo five good ones.

5 — Progress is often messy before it sticks.

6 — Tell your partner the plan before nightfall, every night.

7 — Inconsistency resets the clock. Consistency compounds.

8 — You are teaching a skill — not just surviving the night.

*"You are not just surviving the night.
You are teaching your baby a skill they will use for the rest of their life."*

— Chapter 10, Sleep, Baby. Please.
